Component	Unsatisfactory	Basic	Proficient	Distinguished
1a Demonstrating Knowledge of Content and Pedagogy	Teacher displays little or no understanding of knowledge and content pedagogy. Teacher displays no understanding of how to correct content errors made by themselves and students.	Teacher’s content and pedagogical knowledge represents basic understanding, but does not extend to connections with other disciplines or to possible student misconceptions.	Teacher’s plan for student assessment is aligned with the instructional goals at least nominally, with clear assessment criteria and standards that have been communicated to students. Teacher uses the assessment to plan for groups of students or individuals.	Teacher’s knowledge of the content and pedagogy is extensive, showing evidence of a continuing search for improved practice. Teacher actively builds on knowledge of misconceptions when describing instruction or seeking causes for student misunderstanding.
1b Demonstrating Knowledge of Students	Teacher demonstrates no knowledge of the developmental characteristics of the age group.	Teacher demonstrates partial knowledge of the developmental characteristics of the age group.	Teacher demonstrates thorough knowledge of students’ backgrounds, skill, and interests, and uses this knowledge to plan for groups of students.	Teacher demonstrates thorough knowledge of students’ backgrounds, skills, and interests, and uses this knowledge to plan for individual student learning
1c Setting Instructional Outcomes	Teacher’s goals are of no value or suitability for the students in the class, consisting of a combination of goals and activities, none of which permit viable methods of assessment.	Teacher’s goals are of moderate value or suitability for students in the class, consisting of a combination of goals and activities, some of which permit viable methods of assessment.	Teacher’s goals represent valuable learning and are suitable for most students in the class; they reflect opportunities for integration and permit viable methods of assessment.	Teacher’s goals reflect high-level learning relating to curriculum frameworks and standards; they are adapted, where necessary, to the needs of individual students, and permit viable methods of assessment.
1d Demonstrating Knowledge of Resources	Teacher displays little to no knowledge of school or district resources available either for teaching or for students who need them.	Teacher displays limited knowledge of school or district resources available either for teaching or for students who need them.	Teacher demonstrates thorough knowledge of students’ backgrounds, skill, and interests, and uses this knowledge to plan for groups of students.	Teacher seeks out resources for teaching in professional organizations and in the community, and is aware of resources available for students who need them, in the school, the district, and the larger community.
1e Designing Coherent Instruction	None or very little of the elements of the instructional design support the stated instructional goals and engage students in meaningful learning. Teacher’s lesson or unit has no recognizable structure.	Some of the elements of the instructional design support the stated instructional goals and engage students in meaningful learning, while others do not. Teacher’s lesson or unit has a recognizable structure.	Most of the elements of the instructional design support the stated instructional goals and engage students in meaningful learning and the lesson or unit has a clearly defined structure.	All of the elements of the instructional design support the stated instructional goals, engage students in meaningful learning, and show evidence of student input. Teacher’s lesson or unit is highly coherent and has a clear structure

1f  Designing Student Assessments	Teacher’s approach to assessing student learning contains no clear criteria or standards, and lacks congruence with the instructional goals. Teacher has no plans to use assessment results in designing future instruction	Teacher’s approach to assessing student learning contains minimal clear criteria or standards, and lacks congruence with the instructional goals. Teacher has few plans to use assessment results in designing future instruction.	Teacher’s plan for student assessment is aligned with the instructional goals at least nominally, with clear assessment criteria and standards that have been communicated to students. Teacher uses the assessment to plan for groups of students or individuals.	Teacher’s plan for student assessment is fully aligned with the instructional goals, containing clear assessment criteria and standards that are not only understood by students but also show evidence of student participation in their development. Teacher’s students monitor their own progress in achieving the goals.
